IN LOVING MEMORY

Wally

Rauser

With sadness we announce the passing of Wally Rauser on Feb. 19, 2025 at the age of 92. Wally is survived by 4 sisters, 4 daughters, 1 son and their families including 9 grandchildren, 10 great grandchildren and numerous nieces and nephews.

Wally was born and raised on farms in the Mullingar and Speers region of Sask., worked at Husky Oil in Lloyd for 13 years, and farmed near Dewberry, Alta. for 33 years before retiring in the Kelowna region of B.C. He enjoyed playing fastball, curling and golf. He took pride in his children, in raising hereford cattle and in serving as director for the local credit union.

Wally worked hard and liked to have fun! We will miss him! Memories can be shared online at Everden Rust or Castanet, Kelowna.

Museum Notes

Spring is just around the corner? We're thinking so and planning some additions to the front of the museum. A couple of benches similar to this, some half barrel planters filled with appropriate plantings, and maybe some other creative displays from our large collections. Will be a nice place to sit in the sun in the morning, and the shade in the afternoon don't you think?

Volunteers are the lifeblood of our organization, and we are always open to more. For information on volunteering, becoming a member of the society, or about any of our activities, do not hesitate to contact us at any time. Follow our Facebook page for additional information or, email us at dewberryvalleymuseum@gmail.com.

The Dewberry Valley Museum is funded in part by donations from visitors and community members. Any donation is appreciated, and tax receipts will be issued for donations over $20.00. Please consider us in your donation and legacy planning.

Creating a support system to help with grief can be a meaningful part of the grieving process. Grief can be incredibly isolating, so having a system that provides comfort, understanding, and resources can be truly beneficial.

Consider what type of grief support you are looking for. Would you like the support to be emotional, practical, or a bit of both? Emotional support can provide space to explore the emotional changes that come with grief. Practical support can help you to continue to navigate the roles and responsibilities of life despite what point of grieving you are at. Many people benefit from both types of support at one point or another.

Think about how it feels to connect with family and friends about your grieving process. For some people, they find it easy to connect with their family members or friends because they may have also known the loved one who has died. For other people, they find that their grief is too intertwined with family members or friends. It can be helpful to be honest and to check in on your ability to support one another in your seasons of grief.

Reflect on whether you prefer support to be in person, over text/phone, or in an online connection. One of the benefits of technology can be the ability to connect with larger communities of people who may have similar shared experiences. Support groups may occur in person or virtually, so it can be helpful to explore what your community is able to offer and how you can connect with outside communities to bridge any gaps in services.

Explore social media connections and online communities to expand your support system. Many grief-focused pages on Instagram and Facebook offer daily support, quotes, and community spaces for individuals who are grieving. These can be especially helpful for people who feel isolated and need a sense of connection with others experiencing grief.

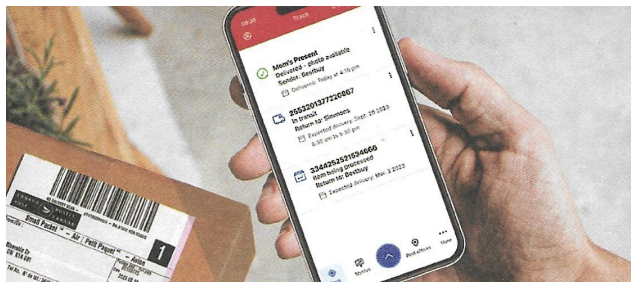

Seek out professional counselling as an additional part of your support system. Grief is a deeply personal experience. Professional counselling can provide a space for healing, help individuals understand and manage their emotions, and offer support during a difficult time.

Expand your support system into religious, spiritual, and/or cultural aspects of your life. For those with religious or spiritual beliefs, engaging in spiritual practices (prayer, meditation, rituals) can be an important part of the healing process. Many faith communities provide support groups or individual counseling to help process grief within a spiritual context. Many cultures have specific grief rituals, such as memorial services, ceremonies, or communal mourning periods, which can provide comfort and a sense of belonging. Engaging in these practices can help individuals feel supported by their community.

The best support system for grief will vary depending on the individual's needs and preferences. It is often a combination of different resources that work best.

Dewberry Community Church

Happy Easter, Dewberry!

But God showed His great love for us by sending Christ to die for us while we were still sinners. And since we have been made right in God's sight by the blood of Christ, He will certainly save us from God's condemnation. For since our friendship with God was restored by the death of His Son while we were still His enemies, we will certainly be saved through the life of His Son. So now we can rejoice in our wonderful new relationship with God because our Lord Jesus Christ has made us friends of God. - Romans 5:8-11

Chocolate eggs and bunnies are delicious. Time spent with family and friends over the Easter weekend is truly a blessing from God! But all of that, as wonderful as it is, pales in comparison to being made right with God. The truth behind Good Friday and Resurrection Sunday is that God is holy, we are not, and He demands Justice for the wrong that each of us has done. So, if God truly is just, how could He forgive us unless our sin debt was paid? One option is for each of us to pay for that sin debt for all of eternity... or... He could pay it for us.

That's exactly what Jesus did on that cross! He took our sin with Him to the grave and rose victorious over sin and death to give us redemption and eternal life. Although God's offer of salvation through His Son is open to everyone, He will not force anyone to accept His offer. That choice is up to you. What will you choose?

Got questions? Come have a chat with me any time ☺
